Researchers may make digital reproductions of materials in the College of Charleston Special Collections and South Carolina Historical Society (SCHS) Archives Reading Room under certain circumstances, depending on the physical condition of materials and the rules of the Reading Room. This policy seeks to balance improved patron services and collection preservation while minimizing disruption to other patrons. Reference staff will assess the physical condition of items to be reproduced. If an item is too fragile, digital reproduction will not be allowed. Please ask reference staff about other available duplication options. All patrons wishing to make digital reproductions in the reading room must complete this form and comply with the rules specified herein.

Digital images must be for personal use only. Patrons interested in acquiring high resolution, publishable images should ask the reference staff about options. IMAGES OF ARCHIVAL MATERIAL MAY NOT BE PUBLISHED, POSTED ON THE INTERNET (including all social media), DONATED OR SOLD TO ANOTHER REPOSITORY, OR EXHIBITED.

Reproducing an entire publication or archival collection is prohibited. Digital reproduction is meant to reduce the need for photocopies and to supplement note taking, not to create a complete personal copy. Careful reading and selection is still required. No more than 25% of any SCHS archival collection may be reproduced.

Handle the material with care. If the physical condition of an object will allow photography, reference staff may assist in positioning the item such that it is fully supported.

- Archival material may not be held up by hand, propped, or placed on the floor or any surface other than the designated tabletop area in the Reading Room.
- Loose materials must remain in their folder and in order at all times.
- Take pictures of materials from one folder at a time, one item at a time, while the item is flat in its original folder.
- Material may not be folded, rolled, or removed from sleeves, mats, or other housing. Reference staff will assist in removing fasteners if possible.
- Ask for assistance with oversize, fragile, or damaged materials.

Proper Citations

- When taking pictures of pages in a book, take pictures of the title page and copyright page before taking pictures of individual pages within. It may be helpful to include the call number bookmark tab as well.
- Make sure to include a citation strip or transparency identifying either CoFC Special Collections or the SCHS as the location of these items in each photograph.
- When taking pictures of items in an archival collection, make sure the folder name is visible in the image. Or, use citation strips provided by staff that will identify the repository, the collection name, box, and folder in each image.
- Recording full citations of each item photographed is your responsibility. This information will help you construct a bibliography, or consult with the proper repository for additional research in the future. Subsequent orders for high-resolution images, or requests to publish, will not be processed without complete citations.
- Please list the items you digitally reproduce below and take a picture or copy of this document for your records. Then turn the form in to staff at the end of each visit. This information will help us to determine which collections are of most interest to researchers, and may be in need of additional preservation, access, or digitization work due to repeated use.

What equipment may or may not be used?

- Personal digital cameras, cell phones, the in-house scanner, book cradles, foam supports, and weighted string may be used.
- Natural light must be used; no flash or additional light sources are allowed.
- No personal flatbed scanners, handheld scanners, laptop cameras, tripods, video cameras, camera bags, flash, lights, copy stands, audio, or stools are allowed.

Reference staff, the Reading Room, or other researchers may not be photographed. Care must be taken not to disturb others.
