Biographical/Historical note:

Gertrude Ellen Dupuy Sanford Legendre (1902–2000) was born to John (II) and Ethel Sanford in Aiken (S.C.). Gertrude attended Foxcroft School in Middleburg (Va.) and graduated in 1920. Following her graduation, Gertrude took her first hunting trip to Grand Tetons in Wyoming to shoot elk with family friend Tom Evans. Gertrude continued her career as a big-game hunter, explorer, and environmentalist for the rest of her life, visiting a variety of places including Africa, Indochina, and India. Gertrude met her first husband, Sidney Legendre (1903-1948), and his brother, Morris Legendre (1902-1953), during the summer of 1928 and soon after embarked on an expedition to Abyssinia (Ethiopia) for the American Museum of Natural History with the brothers. In 1929, Gertrude and Sidney were married in New York (N.Y.), and had two children, Landine (1933-) and Bokara (1940-) Legendre. During World War II, Sidney joined the Navy and was stationed in Honolulu, and Gertrude worked for the Office of Strategic Services (O.S.S.) Message Center in London, England. On September 26, 1944, Gertrude became the first American woman captured on the western front in France by the Germans, and she was held for six months before escaping into Switzerland. Gertrude returned to her home at Medway Plantation in South Carolina, which she and Sidney purchased in 1929 and restored. Sidney died suddenly of a heart attack in March 1948, and Gertrude married longtime friend Dr. Carnes "Piggy" Weeks in 1951. Their five-year marriage ended in divorce, and included an expedition to French Equatorial Africa (1952) with the American Museum of Natural History and the National Geographical Society. Gertrude published two autobiographies, The Sands Ceased to Run (1948), and The Time of My Life (1987), and continued to travel until her death in 2000, living at both Medway Plantation (S.C.) and at her home in Fishers Island (N.Y.).

Sidney Jennings Legendre (1903-1948), Gertrude Sanford Legendre's first husband, was one of six children (Katherine, Hennen, Armant, Edith, Morris, and Sidney) born to lawyer and sugar plantation investor James Gilbert Legendre and Cora H. Morris of New Orleans (La.). The Legendre family was rooted in French creole life and military service, with three of the brothers serving in the World Wars.

Landine Sanford Legendre (1933-) was the first child of Gertrude and Sidney Legendre. Landine attended Foxcroft School in Middleburg (Va.) and married Peter Wood (1935-), with whom she had two children, Peter Sanford "Sandy" Wood (1954-) and Wendy Legendre Wood (1955-). She later married Peter Manigault (1927-2004), Chairman of the Board of the Evening Post Publishing Company in Charleston, South Carolina. Landine and Peter had two children, Gabrielle (1960-) and Pierre Manigault (1962-).

Bokara Hennen Legendre (1940-) was the second child of Gertrude and Sidney Legendre. Early in her career, Bokara worked as an artist and photojournalist, following politician Robert F. Kennedy on his 1963 presidential campaign. She also worked with artist Jasper Johns and exhibited her own paintings in several shows in the United States. Bokara has since hosted her own television program, produced many others, and written for the New York Times and other publications.

Gertrude had two older siblings, her brother, Stephen "Laddie" Sanford (II) (1898-1977), and her sister, Sarah Jane "Janie" Cohran Sanford (1900-1985). Laddie was the eldest of John and Ethel Sanford's three children. He was educated at St. Mark's School, Yale University, and the University of Cambridge. He was a member of the Meadowbrook Polo Club and played on the Hurricanes Polo Team, participating in polo competitions in the United States, Mexico, the United Kingdom, and elsewhere. He married actress Mary Duncan (1895-1993), and resided primarily at the Sanfords' "Los Incas" estate in Palm Beach (Fla.). Polo injuries confined him to a wheelchair from mid-1950 until his death in 1977. Jane was born in 1900 in Amsterdam, New York. In 1937, she married Mario Pansa, an Italian diplomat, member of the Italian Cavalry, polo player, and social adviser to Benito Mussolini before and during World War II. Pansa drowned in an accident soon after the end of World War II, leaving Jane unable to return the United States because of her association with an Axis member. By the mid-1950s, she was allowed to return, and she spent the rest of her days traveling and with family in Palm Beach, Medway Plantation (S.C.), and elsewhere.

John Sanford (II) (1851-1939), Gertrude Sanford Legendre's father, was born to Stephen Sanford (I) and Sarah Jane Cochran Sanford. John Sanford was an American businessman, owner of Hurricana Farms in Amsterdam (N.Y.), a successful thoroughbred breeder, manager of the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company, and a member of the United States House of Representatives (1889-1893) from New York's 20th Congressional District. In 1892, he married his second cousin, Ethel Sanford, in Sanford, Florida, and their children were Stephen "Laddie," Jane, and Gertrude Sanford. Ethel Sanford (1873-1924) of Brussels, Belgium, was one of seven children born to Hon. Henry Shelton Sanford and Gertrude Ellen Dupuy. Ethel studied at the convent of Notre Dame (France) before marrying John Sanford and moving to America.

Stephen Sanford (1826-1913), Gertrude Sanford Legendre's paternal grandfather, was born to U.S. Representative John Sanford (I) (1803-1857) and Mary Slack (1803-1888) of Amsterdam (N.Y.). Stephen was an American businessman and member of the United States House of Representatives (1869-1871) from New York's 18th Congressional District. He founded the successful Hurricana Farms (later known as Sanford Stud Farms) in Amsterdam (N.Y.) and the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company. He married Sarah Jane Cochrane (1830-1901) in 1849 and together they had five children. His eldest child, John Sanford (II), was Gertrude Sanford Legendre's father and later took over the carpet and horse breeding businesses.

Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc. (Bigelow-Sanford) Carpet Company was a family-owned carpet business originally established in Amsterdam (N.Y.) by Stephen Sanford's father, John Sanford (I). Stephen joined his father in the carpet business in 1844, but in 1854, the mill was destroyed in a fire. John Sanford retired from manufacturing and left his business to Stephen Sanford. It was rebuilt and later maintained by Stephen's sons, John (II) and William Cochran "W.C." Sanford. Originally named "Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc.," the company later merged and was known as Bigelow-Sanford.

Henry Shelton Sanford (1823–1891), Gertrude's maternal grandfather, was the only son of American industrialist Nehemiah Curtis Sanford (1792-1841) and Nancy Bateman Shelton (1800-1880). Henry was an American diplomat and United States Ambassador to Belgium (1861-1891). He also founded Sanford, Florida, and successfully petitioned the United States to recognize King Leopold II of Belgium's claim to the Congo Basin, eventually known as the Congo Free State. In 1864, he married Gertrude Ellen Dupuy (1841-1902) in Paris, France, and they had seven children: Henry Shelton Sanford Jr., Gertrude Ellen Dupuy Sanford, Frida Dolores Sanford, Ethel Sanford (Gertrude Sanford Legendre's mother), Helen Carola "Cara" Nancy Sanford, Leopold Curtis Sanford, and Edwynne Emmeline Wilhelmina McKinnon Sanford.
